In his book Finishing Life for the Glory of Christ, author John MacArthur argues that the goal of our lives should not be personal success or happiness, but to glorify God. He writes, "The only way to finish life well is to live it for the glory of Christ."

MacArthur's book is not a how-to manual on how to live a perfect life. Instead, it is a challenge to live our lives according to God's purpose, even when it is difficult. He writes, We will never be able to live perfectly this side of heaven, but we can live our lives in a way that glorifies God.

MacArthur identifies three key principles for finishing life for the glory of Christ:

1. Live by faith. This means trusting in God's promises, even when we cannot see how they will be fulfilled. It also means living in obedience to God's commands, even when it is difficult.
2. Pursue holiness. This does not mean trying to be perfect, but it does mean striving to live a life that is pleasing to God. It means avoiding sin and living in accordance with God's standards.
3. Serve others. This is the practical outworking of love. It means using our time, talents, and resources to help others, especially those in need.

Finishing Life for the Glory of Christ is a challenging book, but it is also a hopeful one. MacArthur reminds us that even though we will never be able to live perfectly, we can still live lives that are pleasing to God. He writes, "The glory of God is our ultimate goal, and it is the only goal that will truly satisfy us."
