In 2016, Mikayla Miller set out on a 2,700-mile journey to find her missing father. She had been estranged from him for years, but she knew that she had to find out what had happened to him.

Miller's father, Ronald Miller, was a truck driver who had disappeared in 2013. He was last seen at a truck stop in Wyoming. Mikayla had no idea where he had gone, and she was desperate to find him.

Miller's journey took her across the country. She drove from her home in California to Wyoming, where her father was last seen. She then traveled to Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, and finally to Maine.

Along the way, Miller met with truck drivers, police officers, and other people who had known her father. She also searched through missing person databases and scoured social media for any sign of him.

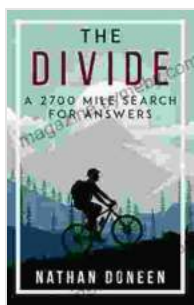

Miller's search was long and arduous, but she never gave up hope. She knew that she had to find her father, no matter what it took.

In 2017, Miller finally found her father. He was living in a homeless shelter in Maine. He had been suffering from mental illness and had lost touch with his family.

Miller was overjoyed to find her father alive and well. She brought him home to California, where he received the help he needed.

The Divide is a gripping true story about a young woman's quest to find her missing father. It is a story of hope, perseverance, and the power of love.

If you are interested in learning more about Miller's story, I encourage you to read her book, The Divide: A 2,700-Mile Search for Answers.
