King's mission began with a series of secret meetings with influential figures around the world. He met with British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, French Prime Minister Édouard Daladier, and German Chancellor Adolf Hitler. Through these meetings, King sought to understand the motivations of key players and explore potential avenues for negotiation.

Negotiations and Challenges

He advocated for collective security, urging nations to cooperate against aggression. He also stressed the importance of addressing economic grievances and promoting social justice to reduce tensions.

The Road to War
